language

Functional Closing a deal

- Choose the correct option in italics.
- A: OK, so I think we are close to a deal. As I understand I mean it you need the fifty tablets delivered here by the end of September?
- B: Not quite. We need the fifty tablets by the middle of September. We also need to train the staff to use them by the end of September.
- A: OK, no problem. We can deliver them by September 18th.
- B: That would be great. What is the price for those?
- A: The best I can do is $650 each.
- B: Including the apps we discussed?
- A: That's normally a little more. Around $700 each.
- B: What about training for our staff? How long would they need?
- A: We are <sup>2</sup> agreed / prepared to give you five free training days for twenty-five employees. Each member of staff will need one day. So, you pay for twenty staff.
- B: Could you do that between the 22nd and 29th?
- A: No problem.
- B: Good. So, we <sup>3</sup> are agree / 've agreed on the dates. That only <sup>4</sup> leaves / means the same point as before. Price.
- A: So, what you sagree / mean is that you are happy with the tablet delivery dates and the training agreement, but you want a better price than $700? And you want the apps included?
- B: I think that just about sums it 6 up / in, yes.
- A: OK. I can agree to $670 per tablet. In 7 return / sum, we would need you to pay by the end of September. Are you able to do that?
- B: 8 If / When it is as you say it is, we will be able to go ahead.
- A: Agreed. Thank you very much.

Talking about priorities

2	Complete the comments made by a manager during a catch-up.
1	Put it at the b of your list of things to do. It's really not important.
2	It has to be done today. It's of u importance.
3	Give it a h priority, please. It's pretty important.
4	You can put it o for a while. It's not urgent.
5	Don't waste t Start it now.
5	Put it in your s and do it when you have time.
7	Could you make it your number one p? Leave everything else.
3	I know it's a bit of a d You have so many other important things to do.